From Local to Global: Manluk Industries started out as a general machine shop founded in the early 1970's by Manfred Luebke. Servicing the needs of Wetaskiwin and area's industrial, agricultural and automotive industries led to the company expanding quickly. Manfred had experience in welding and machining, which led to the opportunity to expand and diversify into the oil and gas market. Upon his retirement, Manfred passed Manluk Industries to his son, Frank, who was instrumental in the development of many products crucial to the continued global success of Manluk Industries.
